

Skateboarding Practice at the TOKYO2020 Summer Olympics

General information

The following document provides detailed information about the Skateboarding official practice at the Tokyo2020 Summer Olympic Games.

Practice Sessions

Practice sessions are defined as a time window where all the competitors of the single event (Men & Women) are allowed to practice for an equal amount of time. All athletes competing in the same event will be offered the same amount of practice sessions and overall amount of practice time.

The practice sessions are distributed starting from 4 days before the first competition of each discipline starts. Should any contingency situation (i.e. weather) disrupt this balance, competition management will alter the practice schedule in order to reinstate a fair and equal amount of practice time to all the competitors of the same event.

Practice Groups

In order to guarantee a safe, relaxed yet productive environment to conduct practice, each practice session is divided in either 2 or 3 practice groups, depending on the length of the overall session time slot. Practice sessions held before the Technical Meeting of each competition, will group Athletes based on their NOC. Competition practice, held on the day of the competition, will reflect the competition heat of belonging.

Practice Check in procedure

For each of the practice sessions, athletes are required to undergo a check-in procedure before the start of their group session. The check in procedure will be performed by a World Skate ITO and will include Helmet (where applicable) and Rule 50 related checks on equipment. In order to avoid any delay and a smooth start of the practice session, athletes are required to show up at the “Skatehouse” 10 minutes before their practice group starts. Athletes are required to use official transportations between the Olympic Village and the competition venue; missed sessions won’t be recouped.
